- Like tree branches, the Branca chair has elements that turn, twist, meet, and branch off.
- Designer Sam Hecht says the branches of a tree provided “the critical analogy” for the Branca chair.
- The chair’s back legs support the critical joints of the armrest, seat, and back, and are made from a single piece of wood produced robotically.
- The Branca table, with its white lacquered top, is a perfect foil to the chair’s elegant form.
